2019 GMC Sierra 1500 Loss in Value Case Study

Tuesday, March 14, 2023

While the GMC Sierra 1500 shares many characteristics with the Chevrolet Silverado 1500, it has its own distinctive design and exclusive features. In addition to an adaptive suspension, split-folding tailgate, and carbon-fiber cargo bed, the Sierra comes with retractable side steps that can pivot rearward to give easier access to the bed.

No matter what the job, the Sierra has an engine to suit, including a turbocharged four-cylinder, a pair of V8s, and a turbodiesel six-cylinder. As a vehicle of its size, the Sierra rides comfortably on most road surfaces and feels stable around turns. The cabin is spacious, especially in Crew Cab models, and its infotainment system is straightforward to use. Many advanced safety features are available with the Sierra.

spaciousness. In addition to heated and ventilated front seats, blind-spot monitoring and lane-departure warning are available as driver-assistance technologies.

GMC Sierra offers a nice balance between workhorse and people hauler. However, in no area is it a class leader, and it still doesn't feel that different from its less expensive cousin, the 2019 Chevrolet Silverado 1500.
