2020 BMW X3 Loss in Value Case Study

Tuesday, July 25, 2023

The 2020 BMW X3 retains its position as a sought-after small luxury SUV, combining a dual-personality demeanor that excels in both performance and comfort. We laud the X3 for its captivating blend of strong acceleration, agile handling, and luxurious interior finishes, making it stand out in a competitive field of compact luxury crossovers.

The X3 30i models, equipped with the standard turbocharged 2.0-liter four-cylinder engine, strike a smart balance between power and fuel efficiency. For those seeking more power, the M40i version boasts an impressive 382 horsepower, elevating the X3 into the realm of a seriously quick crossover. Additionally, BMW offers the X3 M variant with an even larger 473-horsepower engine, catering to enthusiasts craving exceptional performance in a compact SUV package.

BMW's commitment to quality is evident in the X3's upscale materials, top-notch construction, and refined interior design. However, critics point out the Mercedes-Benz GLC-class, Volvo XC60, and Audi Q5 as offering more stylish cabin options.

Although the lack of Android Auto integration might discourage tech-savvy buyers, the X3 compensates with its spacious and comfortable seating for adults in all major positions. BMW thoughtfully expanded the lineup for the 2020 model year, introducing the xDrive30e with a turbocharged four-cylinder engine and a plug-in hybrid system, offering an eco-conscious choice for drivers.

In conclusion, the 2020 BMW X3 impresses with its quiet and engaging driving experience, upscale interior, and a wide range of powertrain options. For those in the market for a small luxury SUV, the X3 remains an impressive and recommendable choice.
