The 2022 Honda Passport

Cruising in the 2022 Honda Passport: Bridging the gap between the compact CR-V and the midsize Pilot, the Passport is a five-passenger midsize SUV. For 2022, Honda gives it a facelift with a redesigned front end and a new TrailSport trim, enhancing its off-road capabilities.

Passport's Practicality and Performance

Practical and capable: With generous cargo space, comfortable passenger accommodations, and driver-assistance tech, the 2022 Honda Passport excels in practicality and performance. The V-6 engine provides deliberate acceleration, though it's not the most fuel-efficient.

The Honda Passport Advantage

Recognized for value: Named a finalist for the 2022 Best 2-Row SUV for the Money award and the Best 2-Row SUV for Families, the Passport offers a winning combination of quality and value. Packed with safety features and an energetic V6 engine, it's suitable for everyday driving and light-duty towing. However, the ride may get wobbly on rough roads, and the price tag of $38,000 and above could be considered steep for a five-seater.

In conclusion, the 2022 Honda Passport is not only a standout SUV in terms of features and performance but also an intriguing case study for understanding the impact of diminished value after an accident. Explore the delicate balance between practicality, performance, and post-collision value in this unique midsize crossover SUV.
